Continuing on his merry way, Larry stumbled upon a gloomy frog sitting by a pond. Determined to turn that frown upside down, Larry began telling a string of llama jokes. With each punch line, the frog's frown grew smaller until it finally vanished, leaving the frog in fits of laughter. ???

As Larry made his way through the forest, a troop of mischievous monkeys swung from the trees, chattering away. Larry couldn't resist joining in on their playful antics, trying to imitate their acrobatic moves. The monkeys laughed so hard at Larry's clumsy attempts that they fell off the trees, swinging wildly from the branches. ????

Word of Larry's laughter-filled adventure spread like wildfire, reaching the ears of the kingdom's royal family. The king and queen, curious to see this incredible llama, invited Larry to the grand palace for an audience. ???

Larry arrived at the palace, his hooves tapping along to a funny tune he had composed. The moment he entered the throne room, the king and queen burst into laughter, unable to contain their joy.
